

MODIFIED CLOTURE IN SENATE SOUGHT Republicans Being Foiled on Move to Expedite Tariff Bill.

Bent upon putting through a modified cloture rule, so that consideration of the tariff bill and other revenue and appropriation measures in the future may be expedited, members of the republican conference of the Senate last evening were circulating a declaration favoring the adoption of an amendment to the rules of the Senate for this purpose.

The declaration, which is in effect a poll of the Senate republicans as well as a round robin, is being signed, it is said by a large majority of the republican membership.

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota, who is a prime mover in the effort to bring about cloture on the tariff bill, said he did not believe there would be more than a dozen of the sixty republican members of the Senate who would oppose the cloture plan.

Caucus Again Wednesday.

In the meantime, the republican conference is to meet again Wednesday, when this question of cloture on the tariff bill is to come up again.

A republican caucus was held at the conference yesterday. It was impossible to reach a decision on the matter. Senator Kellogg of Minnesota, who is a prime mover in the effort to bring about cloture on the tariff bill, said he did not believe there would be more than a dozen of the sixty republican members of the Senate who would oppose the cloture plan.

Democrats Plan Fight.

Senator Kellogg predicted that at the meeting next Wednesday the republican conference would authorize and go on record in favor of an amendment to the rules for majority cloture on appropriation and revenue bills. He said that formal notice would be given the Senate, in connection with the tariff bill, that an amendment to the rules would be proposed. A majority then would adopt the proposed amendment.

The democrats have given notice they would fight any such attempt at cloture on the tariff bill. But if the republicans are in earnest about it, and a rule is offered, the chances are that after a bitter struggle, it could be adopted. Amendments offered by the democrats would be subject to a motion to lay on the table, and the rules provide that a senator may speak only twice on a given proposal. With eleven-hour sessions, the democrats eventually would be worn out and the rule put through, it is said.

There is a growing feeling among the republicans that the country is sick of the present state of affairs and wants action. In every short session of Congress, which occurs every two years, great diversities of opinion are expressed in the experience in getting through the necessary annual appropriation bills because of long debates allowed. In recent years, some of the best bills have failed to pass before the adjournment of the Congress and special sessions have been necessary.

W. T. ABBOTT IN CRITICAL CONDITION AT HOSPITAL.

William T. Abbott of Chicago, member of the tax simplification board and formerly first assistant director, bureau of the budget, is in a serious condition at the Emergency Hospital, where last night doctors said he had but a "slight chance" of recovery from complications following an operation for appendicitis on May 18.

Mr. Abbott was stricken with an acute attack in the Treasury building as he was leaving to take a train for his home in Chicago on May 18. He was rushed to the Emergency Hospital and immediately underwent an operation. Mr. Abbott's condition had been thought to be as favorable as could be expected, in view of the acute attack, until yesterday when he suddenly took a turn for the worse.

The first assistant director of the bureau of the budget Mr. Abbott was closely associated with Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, who has been an anxious daily visitor at the hospital.

Resigning from active participation in the bureau of the budget on January 1, Mr. Abbott returned to Chicago to resume his business as vice president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois. He later accepted, however, appointment as member of the tax simplification board, and had completed an official visit to Washington and purchased his ticket for home when stricken.

WANTS PRESIDENT'S AID.

Seamen's Union Official Urges Action Similar to Steel Case.

A letter from President Andrew Furuseth of the International Seamen's Union of America to President Harding yesterday, expressed "great joy" at the account of "that part of your address to the steel manufacturers in which you stated that the abolition of the twelve-hour day."

The message continues that the seamen know what the seven-day and twelve-hour day and an eighty-four hour week mean. It summarizes the situation with regard to the working hours for seamen, during that up to May 1, 1921, the seamen appreciated the eight-hour day at sea and the nine-hour day in port, since the latter continues, taken away by the American Steamship Owners' Association and the Shipping Board from the seamen's eight-hour day at sea and the nine-hour day in harbor.

"In doing so," the letter charges, "you drove from the sea nearly all worthwhile native Americans. The by you speaking in the same way to the eighty-four-hour week of the seamen, Shipping Board and the American Steamship Owners' Association that you spoke to the steel manufacturers."

Mr. President, the seamen have gained new hope from your address to the steel manufacturers.

Duncan, Franklin C. Edgar, George McCintock, Lyle J. Millan, Frank M. Moxon, William P. Mull, Roger A. Noxon, J. O'Connor and Philip S. Sullivan.

WILL HOLD HEARING ON NAVY YARD BILL

Hull Measure Would Provide Employment in Federal Workshops.

To prevent further cutting down of the force of 3,800 in the Washington navy yard and, if possible, to secure the reinstatement of 1,400 who were furloughed without pay several months ago, hearings are to start tomorrow on a bill introduced by Representative Hull of Iowa before a subcommittee of the House naval affairs committee, of which Representative Darrow of Pennsylvania is acting chairman.

The Hull bill, introduced March 20, is "to relieve unemployment among civilian workers of the government, to remove the special incentive to war, to stabilize production in federal industrial plants, to promote the economic and efficient operation of these plants."

Wants Navy Yard Work.

Briefly, it proposes that all munitions of war be manufactured by the government itself, and that as much work as possible from all the government establishments be done in the navy yards and navy yard provision plants. The bill would apply for the next five years, where the work could be done cheaper, it should be sent to the navy yards. This bill, which is called an "industrial preparedness" measure, seeks to provide the machinery to force this work from the government departments in the navy yards and arsenals.

More than twenty members of Congress have introduced bills to make speeches at the hearings, among them being Representatives Darrow of Massachusetts, Darrow of Washington, and Nolan, California, chairman of the committee on labor, himself a machinist by trade.

N. P. Alfias, president of District 44, International Association of Machinists, which comprises all machinists in the government service, will be one of the principal proponents. He will urge that there is nothing new sought under this legislation, since the government in the past has similarly argued that certain of its work be done in certain navy yards.

Mr. Alfias said that its first result should be in retaining to the government in the Washington navy yard the work of the Army and the latter machinists which the government cannot afford to disband.

See Big Savings.

Capt. Byers, an efficiency expert, who had made an investigation where such a system was tried out in some arsenals, will present statistics showing that the government actually saved hundreds of thousands of dollars by doing this work in its open plants instead of giving the contracts to outside establishments.

This measure, it is stressed, will merely remove the handicaps, some of them set up by the navy itself, to getting the orders from other government departments into the navy yards.

Mr. Alfias said that its first result should be in retaining to the government in the Washington navy yard the work of the Army and the latter machinists which the government cannot afford to disband.

McDANIEL MAY BE NAMED TO CIVIL SERVICE BOARD

President Reported Ready to Appoint Him, Now Member of General Staff, U. S. A.

The report that the President may appoint A. B. McDaniel, a consultant in education and construction of the general staff of the Army, to fill a vacancy in the Civil Service Commission has aroused much interest in Washington.

The sentiment is general, it was said last night, that this vacancy should be filled by a man of wide experience. With the reorganization of the government department and the probable reclassification of the Civil Service Commission will play an important part and will require the services of a technically qualified man.

Mr. McDaniel graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology with the degree of S. B. in 1901. He was engineer in charge of the main field office of the East river division of the Pennsylvania tunnels under Alfred Noble.

He later went into educational work going to South Dakota, where he became professor of civil engineering and organized the engineering work in the University of South Dakota. About the same time he organized the Missouri Valley Engineering Company, practicing general civil engineering.

Durand, Dakota. During that time he was city engineer and consulting engineer for the state, county and private concerns in both South Dakota and Nebraska, principally on road construction, drainage, land surveys and water rights.

He was called to the University of Illinois as assistant professor. He has served also as consulting engineer on construction work for the War Department, and as chief engineer, holding the positions of expediting engineer, construction division of the Army, and principal engineer, construction division of the Army, being executive in charge of the management and co-ordination of the work of the engineering division.

His present position is educational consultant in the preparation of educational technique and material for the Army schools and consulting engineer for construction.

FIVE GALLAUDET GIRLS IN EGG BOMBARDMENT GIVEN PENALTY

Something new in the line of college pranks, if it can be classed as such, took place at Gallaudet College May 10, it was learned yesterday, when, in the early hours of the morning, five young women occupants of Fowler Hall opened up with a barrage of antique eggs against the College Hall, which houses a portion of the male students of the college and three members of the faculty. Some of the "deadly" missiles found their objectives, but the majority got no farther than the exterior of the building.

As a result five girls have been suspended, the suspensions requiring that before they return next year, they must make special applications for reinstatement. In the meantime, they have been ordered to keep up their studies and college activities as best they can. The young women who brought about the innovation are: Elizabeth Hasset of the class of 1924 and Mary Klatts, '24, of Pennsylvania; Doris Ballance, '25, of Kansas; Minnie Seely, '25, of California; Helen Moss, '23, of Maryland.

The Travelers Aid Society is maintained by the voluntary contributions of Washington persons. We must look to them for support, and I am happy to say that they are now doing it. We ask that it be continued and we appeal to those who have not contributed to do so at once."

CAPTURE OF CANTIGNY RECALLED AT DINNER

Men of 1st Division Celebrate Fourth Anniversary of Famous Battle.

Washington men, who were connected with the 1st Division during the war, celebrated the fourth anniversary of the capture of Cantigny by American troops last night at a banquet held at the New Ebbitt Hotel. Throughout the nation, members of the 1st Division held an anniversary of the capture of Cantigny, which was the first battle in which the division was thrown into the line, captured the town and held it successfully through nine German counter attacks.

Old acquaintances were renewed at the banquet, and the men met again, some for the first time since the war, and recounted past experiences. About seventy-five officers and men of the division were present among them several disabled veterans from Walter Reed Hospital.

Following the dinner, Corp. Nicholas Caparelli, 28th Infantry, recounted his career while attached to the division. Capt. George C. Marshall, aide to Gen. Pershing, formerly operation officer of the division, who acted as toastmaster.

Lieut. Malcolm Stevenson, president of the organization, urged a drive to have the division reactivated as an official Washington branch of the national 1st Division organization could be formed.

PLAN FOR INDEPENDENT SCHOOL BOARD DEFENDED

Senator Capper Answers Criticism of District Commissioners on Reorganization Bill.

Replying to criticisms by the District Commissioners of the tentative school reorganization bill now before the joint congressional committee on public schools of the District, Senator Capper of Kansas, chairman of the joint committee, said last night that the proposal contained in the bill, to separate the board of education and school affairs absolutely from the management of the schools, with progressive school management in the big cities of the country.

Some committee members who appeared before the board of education in their investigation of the school system here were unanimously in favor of having the board of education independent organization, authorized to handle all matters pertaining to the schools, including their finances."

This plan has been found to work well elsewhere. It is along the line of advanced educational management. I believe that the National Capital should not be allowed to lag behind other American cities in its educational system."

STRANGE LIFE OF WYOMING WOMAN

CATTLE RUSTLER ENDS IN MYSTERY

Special Dispatch to The Star. KEMMERER, Wyo., May 27.—The new-made grave which has closed this tempestuous life of Annie Richey, the only woman ever convicted in Wyoming of cattle rustling, is a grave of mystery.

Annie was found dead on her ranch and an examination showed she had been poisoned. Some say she was a suicide, for within the month she was to have been taken to the Colorado penitentiary at Canon City to serve her sentence. Others say she was murdered by men who were implicated with her in the cattle rustling deal and who feared that, once within prison walls, Annie's tongue, sealed throughout her trial, might begin to wag.

The case is one of the strangest known in great west, just as Annie's life was one of the most adventurous. She died at the age of thirty, a victim of a cruel fate. Misfortune had cursed all her adult life. Her marriage to a ranchman had ended in a bitter divorce. Ranch born and bred, she turned to rustling for her own support. A shipment of cattle which she made two years ago was found to contain many steers which had been subjected to a cruel and blinding handiwork. She was arrested.

That's the first time I ever won anything," said the vice president, as the wheel halted at the number he held, and the girls, also investors in the spin, broke into cheers.

The distinguished visitor saw the Corinthian challenge event, in which the principal contestants were carried their red-coated riders over board and brush leaps, and warmly applauded Mrs. J.
